HART CROWSER NAMES NEW BOARD MEMBERS

(February 12, 2019) Hart Crowser has named Loren Sokolow and Doug Lindquist to its board of directors.

Doug Lindquist is a geotechnical and seismic engineer who has been with the firm for 20 years. Lindquist is an expert in performance-based seismic design, a type of earthquake analysis commonly used for tall buildings and waterfront structures. He is on the American Society of Civil Engineers (ASCE) committee that develops standards for Seismic Design of Piers and Wharves. Lindquist has served as President of the ASCE Seattle Section Geotechnical Group, is a board member of the Washington chapter of the Earthquake Engineering Research Institute, and is a voting member of the Structural Engineers Association of Washington Earthquake Engineering Committee.

Loren Sokolow is the Chief Financial Officer at Psomas, where he is responsible for all financial management including accounting, financial planning, and cash management. He has four decades of experience as a financial and operations executive, which includes budget preparation and administration, financial analysis, management of the firm's employee stock ownership plan (ESOP), contract administration, facilities & fleet management, management information systems, ownership transition and strategic planning. He has a particular interest in innovation and technology as they apply to financial systems and productivity. Sokolow is Co-Chair of the American Council of Engineering Companies (ACEC) Finance Forum Steering Committee.

Hart Crowser is an employee-owned engineering, science, and consulting firm headquartered in Seattle, with nine offices in Washington, Oregon, Hawaii, and Alaska. The firm specializes in geotechnical engineering, environmental science and engineering, stormwater services, and disaster resilience.
